

What's new in the Laurentians – November 2010

Chemin du Terroir

To discover the Laurentians from another angle, to allow tourists and visitors to prolong their stay by offering escapades in all four seasons, such is the objective of this new initiative. The 226-km well-signposted route along with various information tools, such as a detailed map highlighting the 30 local partners offering diverse, high-quality experiences, will delight our visitors. In addition, the dedicated website will help them personalize their tour. Locate the entry points to the "Chemin du Terroir" on the blue panels with the sunflower and village symbols, and get off the beaten track. On the route or just nearby, a whole world of countryside attractions awaits you, with a complete change of scene and the warmest of welcomes.

Continental and Porter back at Mont-Tremblant this winter

For the 2010-2011 ski season, Mont-Tremblant will again be served by direct flights between its La Macaza–Mont-Tremblant International airport and the cities of New York and Toronto. Porter Airlines will run no less than 12 flights per week from Toronto’s Billy Bishop airport (located only minutes from the Queen City’s downtown core) between December 21, 2010 and April 3, 2011. As for Continental Airlines, it will also offer direct flights from Newark-Liberty airport located in New Jersey, less than 25 km from New York City, starting on December 24, 2010. These two links once again confirm the status of Mont-Tremblant and the Laurentian region as a winter sports destination of choice.
